Cuba will bring a resolution to the United Nations to end the cruel (60-year+) U.S. blockade on their country during the annual vote by the United Nations on the embargo.

Cuba's the resolution calls for: "Necessity of ending economic, commercial and financial embargo imposed by the United States of America against Cuba."

In 2022, this resolution was passed overwhelmingly by 185 countries for the 30th consecutive vote at the UN General Assembly, while the U.S. and Israel voted to continue the blockade, and a couple of countries abstained on the vote.

While the U.S. government continually votes "No" to ending the cruel blockade, the people of the United States want to enter the family of nations from around the world to demand "End the Blockade on Cuba" and "Let Cuba Live." The people of the U.S. have shown their support by passing 106 resolutions at city councils, state legislatures and labor unions. These resolutions represent 55 million people.

SCOTA will be participating in a 24-hour global picket in support of the UN resolution. Want to join the 24-hr virtual picket? Sign up here: <https://tinyurl.com/24hr4Cuba>
